

Origin Lounge Community Rules

We're so happy you've decided to join The Origin Lounge. We look forward to hearing your opinions on all sorts of subjects.

We want to make our forums as simple to use as possible but if you're finding things tricky, please tell us at support@theoriginlounge.co.uk

Talk to women just like you

Here's our guide to what you can and can't do on The Origin Lounge's community, but generally we think that if you wouldn't say it to your friend in real life, please don't say it here.

Dos

- Assume good faith. Always assume that posts are made in good faith, to keep the conversation flowing, not to hinder it. When disagreement or ill-feeling occurs please try to resolve it, rather than fuel it and recognise whether the issue stems from a difference of opinion and how you can reach a compromise.
- Please report inappropriate posts. This is an open community and the Origin Lounge doesn't review every post. If you see a post that you believe breaks our guidelines, please report it immediately to support@theoriginlounge.co.uk
- Share your views! This is your space, so please take full advantage of every area and keep the conversation going.
- Be yourself. See this as your area to share your feelings and be yourself!

Don'ts

- Don't create multiple user names and dual identities. You can log in to the community from any computer, using the same identity.
- Don't abuse other community members. While we're all in favour of debate and respectfully disagreeing, please don't make personal attacks or use abusive language. If we receive a valid complaint, we will send you a warning or terminate your account.
- Don't conduct or forward other surveys, contests, pyramid schemes or chain letters.
- Don't post advertising messages or spam for commercial gain.
- Don't post obscene, profane, racist, sexually explicit or hateful language.
- Don't share your personal details - or anyone else's - including real names, home addresses, phone numbers and email addresses.

Thanks and we look forward to hearing from you,

The Origin Lounge Team